

I've been dancing for a little over 16 years now, started as a self taught hip-hop dancer when I was 10 from watching TV shows, movies, YouTube videos, and from my dad (a bboy back in the 80s and 90s). I took my first ever dance class as a senior in High School in 2013-14. From there I danced for 3+ years at Mira Costa college and joined a dance crew during my time at school. I competed in both choreo and freestyle battles but was more focused in the battle scene. I taught my first dance class in 2016 at the YMCA, then broadened out to teaching workshops at schools and taught at other studios as well. I mainly specialize in hip-hop, but have taught kids how to breakdance, modern, and contemporary as well.
